

The light exits the source, hits the mirror, and is detected in the detector. Lines have been drawn to indicate different paths that the light can take in going from the source to the mirror to the detector. Choose which curve best represents the time it takes the photon to move from Source to Detector as a function of where it hits the mirror.

